History

Coastal architecture has an interesting history in that it's a culmination of styles from different coastal areas all around the world. You are likely to find a mixture of architectural styles, from Mediterranean to modern to traditional, in any given coastal area. As long as the home takes advantage of beautiful views via plentiful windows, and has details such as roof overhangs or trellises that help protect the home from the sun and heat, you're set. The coastal feeling is really brought to life inside the home.

HOW TO USE THIS STYLE

When executing a coastal design, regardless of if the final product reads more modern, more traditional, or somewhere in between, you want the home to feel the way you feel at the coast – relaxed. Keep the color palette simple and crisp, and utilize texture to soften things up!

ENTERTAINING

While the interior has plenty of room and space for residents and visitors alike, most of the entertaining is going to happen outdoors! Whether it's a wide porch, an oversized deck, a balcony, or a patio, you'll want to be outside enjoying the views of the coast.

KITCHEN TRENDS

Light & bright is the key! While you can infuse color so it's not "just" a white kitchen, you'll want to keep the colors muted, from the cabinets to the countertops to the tile. Think whites, soft blues, and tans – colors reminiscent of the ocean, lake or river.

BATHROOMS

Bathrooms will mostly follow the same concept as the kitchen – clean and crisp with whites, soft blues, and tans.

LIGHTING

Lighting, especially in a coastal home, can carry a lot of personality! You can stick with simple metal fixtures in chrome, nickel or brass tones, or you can mix it up and bring in natural elements whether it's a woven fixture or maybe something with a wood element.

PAINT COLORS

- Whites (crisp whites, cool whites, warm whites)
- Blues (pastel blues, deep blues, green-blues)
- Tans & Grays

HBD Interiors

- Neutral fabrics, slip-covered upholstery, relaxed in style.
- Color added through shades of blue.
- Texture added through lighting, woven furniture pieces, rugs, and accessories.
